November in America Has Always Been The Season To Be Thankful!

Hello Everyone!

As we enter into what typically is known as the 'holiday season', I would like to wish each of you the best of all things in Christ, our Lord. This year is different, for sure! But as things all around us are changing and the foreboding threats of darkness loom directly ahead, just know that all of these things merely are the signal and sign of Jesus' coming onto the scene!

We are constantly being challenged by change, and that challenge has been steadily developing, although, seemingly according to the plans of evil for our nation and our world. Not so, however, as God is in control, not evil, and that's where our confidence and comfort lies. Through the years we have been hearing the call to 'Come Out!' Many have have, but many have yet to do so. Our faith is being tested and tried as never before. Everything about God has come under attack. Jesus is about to change all of that and turn everything around.

So, as we enter this season of joy and thankfulness let us do so with the great expectation of Jesus' coming! We have been watching and waiting for many years. Now is the time! The time for His coming and our Joy!

Amen... Benjamin
